An explanation of our search results

If you recently used Google to search for the word "Jew," you may have seen results that were very disturbing. We assure you that the views expressed by the sites in your results are not in any way endorsed by Google. We'd like to explain why you're seeing these results when you conduct this search.

A site's ranking in Google's search results relies heavily on computer algorithms using thousands of factors to calculate a page's relevance to a given query. Sometimes subtleties of language cause anomalies to appear that cannot be predicted. A search for "Jew" brings up one such unexpected result.

If you use Google to search for "Judaism," "Jewish" or "Jewish people," the results are informative and relevant. So why is a search for "Jew" different? One reason is that the word "Jew" is often used in an anti-Semitic context. Jewish organizations are more likely to use the word "Jewish" when talking about members of their faith. The word has become somewhat charged linguistically, as noted on websites devoted to Jewish topics such as these:

- <http://www.jewishworldreview.com/cols/jonah081500.asp>

Someone searching for information on Jewish people would be more likely to enter terms like "Judaism," "Jewish people," or "Jews" than the single word "Jew" in fact, prior to this incident, the word "Jew" only appeared about once in every 10 million search queries. Now it's likely that the great majority of searches on Google for "Jew" are by people who have heard about this issue and want to see the results for themselves.

The beliefs and preferences of those who work at Google, as well as the opinions of the general public, do not determine or impact our search results. Individual citizens and public interest groups do periodically urge us to remove particular links or otherwise adjust search results. Although Google reserves the right to address such requests individually, Google views the comprehensiveness of our search results as an extremely important priority. Accordingly, we do not remove a page from our search results simply because its content is unpopular or because we receive complaints concerning it. We will, however, remove pages from our results if we believe the page (or its site) violates our Webmaster Guidelines, if we believe we are required to do so by law, or at the request of the webmaster who is responsible for the page.

We apologize for the upsetting nature of the experience you had using Google and appreciate your taking the time to inform us about it.

Sincerely,
The Google Team

P.S. You may be interested in some additional information the Anti-Defamation League has posted about this issue at http://www.adl.org/rumors/google_search_rumors.asp. In addition, we call your attention to Google's search results on this topic.

Google Is A Significant Threat To Democracy: Therefore It Must Be Regulated

• Comment Now • Follow Comments

I feel reasonably certain that there are better ways to spend scarce research dollars than this particular paper. However, it has indeed been spent, the paper has been written and thus we must consider what the authors tell us. That Google could be a serious threat to democracy. Here, it's the concluding line of the paper:

“ We conjecture, therefore, that unregulated search rankings could pose a significant threat to a democratic system of government.

The image shows a screenshot of a web browser window displaying a Google search for Sara Baartman. The browser's address bar shows the URL `www.google.com/imgres?hl=en&client=firefox-a&hs=a9M&sa=X&ibo=d&rls=eng.mozilla-en-`. The browser's toolbar includes icons for Download, Player, Browse, Rank: 2, Help, About, and Preferences. Below the toolbar are social media sharing options for Facebook, Email, Twitter, Print, Favorites, and Google, along with a search bar labeled "Search the Web".

The main content area of the browser shows a search result for Sara Baartman. On the left, there is a large image of Sara Baartman in a dark, lacy outfit. To its right is a book cover titled "THE HOTTENTOT VENUS" by Rachel Holmes, with the subtitle "The Life and Death of SAARTJIE BAARTMAN". Below the book cover is a small illustration of a person with a spear. To the right of the book cover is a large, red wax seal with a circular emblem, and a large white letter 'S' is partially visible. Below the wax seal and 'S' are the words "BUSINESS & TECHNOLOGY" and "HEALTH & LIFESTYLE".

On the right side of the browser window, the Google Images search results are displayed. The text reads: "Google images", "Website for this image", "Sara Baartman: The First Video Vixen!", "Sara Baartman: The First Video Vixen! signetmagazine.com", "Full-size image", "200 x 316 (Same size), 16KB", "Search by image", "Type: JPG", and "Images may be subject to copyright." The browser's status bar at the bottom right shows the text "zotero".

ALGORITHMIC BIAS IN LIBRARY DISCOVERY SYSTEMS

March 11, 2016

◀ Prev

More and more academic libraries have invested in discovery layers, the centralized “Google-like” search tool that returns results from different services and providers by searching a centralized index. The move to discovery has been driven by the ascendance of Google as well as libraries’ increasing focus on user experience. Unlike the vendor-specific search tools or federated searches of the previous decade, discovery presents a simplified picture of the library research process. It has the familiar single search box, and the results are not broken out by provider or format but are all shown together in a list, aping the Google model for search results.

Figure 5.2. A call to the profession to address algorithmic bias in library discovery systems by Matthew Reidsma attempts to influence the field of information studies. Source: Reidsma, 2016.

Figure E.1. Google search for “final election results” leads to fake news. Source: Washington Post, November 14, 2016.

If you head to Google to learn the final results of the presidential election, the search engine helpfully walks through the final electoral vote tallies and number of seats won by each party in the House and Senate. Under that, Google lists some related news articles. At the top this morning, with an accompanying photo: a story arguing that Donald Trump won both the popular and electoral votes.

That's not true.

The Daily Show's Dan Amira noticed that numbers were being spread on social media that linked back to the "70 News" site. The 70 News article cites its source as this tweet.
