

Element	Direction	Light Side	Shadow Side	Objects for Dark Moon Circle
Fire	South	Creativity, inspiration, sexual energy, victory, success	Destruction, anger, rage, war	Ashes, charred remains of a fire, an object that survived a house or forest fire. A piece of stone or dirt from the site of a fire, especially one that caused significant damage. An object that has been warped and ruined by heat either by your own doing or naturally.
Water	West	Intuition, deep feeling, emotion, empathy, love	Navigating sadness and depression, addiction, being submerged in others' feelings, obsession	Silt from the bottom of a pond or lake. This will contain decomposed plant and animal life. Fish bones (these are often tossed onto the beach by birds of prey). A lost object that has been worn down or destroyed by the water over time and washed up on shore in a state of decomposition and transition. This could be sea glass or some other man-made item that has significantly changed from exposure to water.
Earth	North	Prosperity, growth, fertility, abundance	Physical death; deep, dark change such as compost, decomposition, rot, survival instincts	Animal bones and skulls, dark earth from a deep hole, dead roots of trees from underground, dirt from a grave.

Element	Direction	Light Side	Shadow Side	Objects for Dark Moon Circle
Air	East	Communication, self-expression, connecting to others, writing and art, intellect	Knowledge of the dark arts, communicating with the dead and unseen spirits, crossing information between living and dead worlds, expressing the shadow self through words or art, teaching and learning hard lessons	Crow or owl feathers, burning dark moon incense (explained below), your breath taken during the dark moon phase contained in a bottle.
