Waropa - War in Europa 'Sleeve Notes' and Bibliography

First an introduction. The two Audie Murphy streamZ were recorded first, and it then occurred to us that we should address a WW1 hero too. As we began researching and writing it became apparent that the aftermath of the terrible experiences they had become manifest in several different ways. So through the linking narrative we tried to get this thread over and add in other interesting and related information.

The Bibliography works a starter guide and is in no way definitive as many aspects of this Waropa compendium come from personal knowledge, experience and numerous conversations with scholars.

Welcome to the Future of History. History for those of us who read with our ears, and listen with our hearts. Feel it...

Waropa - War in Europa

As you read with your ears you will travel through history with this streamZcast.com compendium. History meets psychology.

What would you do if you had to go to World War One or Two? What would the experience do to you afterwards? How would you cope? Shell Shock, battle fatigue, the rack, Post Traumatic Stress Disorder.

These three stories, the EuroViewPoint and the narrators' conversations in the studio provide a unique insight for everyman. These stories and our compendiumZ become learning tools - enjoyable educational tools to help people fully appreciate history.

War changes the lives of ordinary people in extraordinary ways as these stories will show. Within those lives are lessons for us all - experiences that can change us too.

Seen through the eyes of two ordinary American men, 'Waropa' chronicles the myriad consequences of both the World Wars in Europa. We learn of these heroes early days, their lives, loves and fears. We travel with them through battles in Italy and France, under the leadership of military legends such as 'Black Jack' Pershing and George Patton.

After the fighting is over the stories continue as rebuilding their lives continue back home in America. These three stories get under the skin and into the hearts of protagonists in the way that only storytelling can.

To add contrast and context a European viewpoint is included further broadening the listener's knowledge and understanding of a broader world.

American Historian, geographer and occasional humourist, Bill Goodwin, and European writer, Mark Woods, combine their knowledge and insights. Their aim? To reconnect people with history through the lives and stories of real people.

That is the streamZcast.com ethos.

streamZcast.com compendiumZ are written specifically for the internet and smart devices.

streamZcast SleeveNotes

On the Tennessee and Kentucky Border...

LWG: "War takes ordinary men (and women) and drives them to Glory, often at great cost. With this stream we tried to contrast the ordinary farm-boy life of a young Tennessean with his exploits on the world stage in WW1.

MVW: "We were in the studio and as Bill was working way through the scratch mix of this stream, I got to thinking about my own experiences of what Americans call Veterans' Day during my youth in England. I ended up getting quite carried away, tearful too..."

To Hell & Back

LWG: "America fought beside this man in World War Two. Yet his greatest battle was the long road home...."

MVW: "Melancholia, Shell-shock, Battle Fatigue, The Rack. PTSD - Post Traumatic Stress Disorder is what it's now called. This unique hero's most difficult battles weren't the Europe of World War Two. But he still fought and won... When we recorded this show both LWG and I became quite emotional. You'll hear it in this powerful presentation."

To Motel & Back

MVW: LWG (Bill Goodwin to you and me) recorded an LWG His-Story back in 2009 as part of the first season of the LWG His-Stories genre about the author of 'To Hell and Back'. The book was subsequently made into a successful film and was a box office record until Jaws over took it in 1977. But its author had some terrible internal demons. This History With Attitude attempts to explore this critical internal battle and expand to touch the souls and torment of many others, soldiers or others the world over. This issue should not be ignored and neither should this ground-breaking Stream based on an imagining of a real situation in the California of the late 1960's...
